PRINCIPAL MESSAGE

NAPLAN

NAPLAN for our Year 3 and 5 students commenced yesterday. We thank our well-prepared staff for assisting with the delivery of instructions and helping the students feel at ease. We wish them the best of luck for the remainder of the assessment period.

Traffic Around the School

The safety of our students and school community remains a top priority. We kindly remind all families to follow key road rules around the school to ensure a safe and smooth drop-off and pick-up experience.

Observe the 40km/h School Zone Speed Limit – Please slow down and drive with care during school zone hours.

No Double Parking

Double parking creates safety hazards by blocking visibility and increasing congestion. Please use designated parking areas and follow traffic flow guidelines.

Student Safety First – Remind children to use designated crossings and always exit vehicles on the curbside.

We continue to work closely with the Whittlesea Council to seek further support in managing traffic around the school. Your cooperation and patience make a big difference in keeping our students safe. Thank you for your ongoing support!

Dental Anxiety Tips For Children

Some children simply just fear going to the dentist. This may be due to a poor experience, an observation of a friend or family member, or something they have seen on a different platform. Here are some reasons why children may have dental anxiety and ways to deal with it to support your child in a successful visit. Smile Squad will be joining ECPS within the next few week, use some of these tips with your children prior if they are displaying some dental anxiety at home.

What is dental anxiety?

It is the fear or stress surrounding a visit to the dentist. It may be specific to different procedures such as using tools like needles or drills and the sounds they may make. Unfortunately, this anxiety can lead to children avoiding attending check up appointments with the dentist as adults, leading to the need for help with oral care or the need for extensive treatment in later years. Most of the time, avoiding going to the dentist will compound or relieve the stress, though it may continue the cycle of avoiding the dentist in the future and lead to larger issues.

Dental anxiety may occur for many reasons, some factors that lead to dental anxiety may include:

The memory of a previous painful experience,

The view or smell of a dental setting, Anxiety about the cost of appointments, The sight or feeling of steel dental instruments being used on their teeth, or inadequate preparation for the dentist appointment.

We can support children by helping them strengthen and develop different strategies and coping mechanisms when attending appointments.

Some support strategies:

- Talk to your child about their dental procedure before attending the appointment - even if it is just a simple check up.
- Answer any of your child's questions honestly, and try to explain the procedure using comforting and easy to understand language according to their age.
- Search for some images online of the dental setting so that children are familiar with what they might see, an office, a dental chair, a light, or some equipment that won't worry them
- You may like to organise something positive for after the appointment has been attended, such as playing your child's favourite game with them straight after, or watching their favourite movie.
- Avoid using dental treatment as a threat
- Encourage oral hygiene and sticking to a morning/night time routine as consistent as possible
- Allow your child to bring a comfort item or toy with them to the appointment
- Find positive stories or games about the dentist
- Using positive reinforcement or giving oral care awards at home.

Teaching and reinforcing positive oral care habits including regular dental appointments and positive discussion around the dentist will help your child to understand that the dentist wants to help them keep their teeth healthy and clean and there is nothing to fear. If your child is experiencing some dental anxiety about any upcoming appointments, feel free to get into contact with the Wellbeing team at ECPS for some further support.
